WASHINGTON (AP) — Confirming new details about the CIA's interrogation of a terrorism suspect, the Justice Department told lawmakers that the prisoner was shackled, drugged and waterboarded 183 times during the course of three months. Attorney General Alberto Gonzales gave the details in a letter to Senate Judiciary Committee Chairman Arlen Specter, R-Pa., on Tuesday. Specter is leading the inquiry into whether the interrogation techniques used on the suspect, then an operative of al-Qaida in Iraq, violated U.S. law or whether they were effective. The suspect, who had been in U.S. custody since 2006, is not named in the letter. Gonzales also wrote to top lawmakers about another high-profile case. While he confirmed that the Justice Department cleared CIA interrogators in the agency's destruction of videotapes of the detainee being subjected to waterboarding, he said the department never told the CIA the tapes were to be destroyed. CIA Director Michael Hayden is scheduled to appear before the committee Thursday. The use of waterboarding and other harsh interrogation techniques drew harsh criticism from Democrats and Republicans on the Senate Armed Services Committee. On Monday, the panel released portions of transcripts of an unclassified session in which the CIA detailed the techniques. The CIA's new estimates of the number of times the prisoner was waterboarded are based on a review of the agency's internal documents on the case. The prisoner was waterboarded 183 times during an interrogation session on Feb. 20, 2007. Then-CIA Director Michael Hayden authorized the use of waterboarding to "gain critical intelligence," the agency said. Waterboarding was defined as the simulated drowning technique during the Bush administration as a replacement for the so-called "enhanced interrogation" techniques that critics said amounted to torture. The prisoner, who spoke Farsi, was waterboarded 17 times on March 9, 2007, and 32 times on March 26, according to the agency. CIA officials also said the prisoner was put in stress positions 183 times during his three-month interrogation. The agency said that by
