In this photo taken Feb. 12, 2012, Sen. Frank Lautenberg, D-N.J., speaks during an event at the Capitol in Washington. The senator has been ill for some time and is in intensive care, according to a spokeswoman. If Lautenberg dies, it will be the third death of a U.S. senator this year. (AP Photo/J. Scott Applewhite) Sen. Frank Lautenberg, the longest-serving lawmaker in the U.S. Senate, has died following a battle with brain cancer. The 89-year-old New Jersey Democrat died Friday at his home in the Northern section of the state, his office said. "He touched the lives of millions by opening doors of opportunity and helping to create a better life for families across this nation," his office said in a statement. "Senator Lautenberg's legacy will endure in the millions of children he empowered to pursue education and achieve the American Dream." Lautenberg was first elected to Congress in 1963 and was re-elected five times. In 1992, he made his third and final Senate bid, and was elected. During his time as a senator, he held several positions, including chairman of the Senate Committee on Commerce, Transportation and Tourism and chairman of the Senate Subcommittee on Oversight of Government Management, the Federal Workforce and the District of Columbia. In 1982, he was awarded the Presidential Medal of Freedom. Lautenberg was first diagnosed
