Q: Is there way to use node.js HTTP server/socket.io client within php I want to use HTTP server written by node.js and node.js socket.io client within php. For example, an user visits to a php page and the pages communicates with node.js server. Is there way to do it? If I have understood correctly, the php page can only communicate with the client (sockets). So, how to transfer this information to node.js server? A: Use websockets instead of http. You can use nc to "listen" on a specific port and then keep them open and fire off messages between php and node. If you get hungry, use node's core http library to query the socket for updates. // This is only a very basic example. var server = http.createServer(function (req, res) { if(req.url == '/echo' && req.method == 'POST') { var socket = io.of('ws://localhost:3000'); socket.emit('message', req.body.message); res.end('Echo back to the client:
